Analyst Summary

Market Overview

US equities rallied on Thursday, with the Nasdaq 100 leading major indices higher by 1.62% as technology and semiconductor stocks surged. The S&P 500 advanced 0.81%, while the Dow Jones added a more modest 0.27%. The Russell 2000 gained 1.22%, and the VIX dropped 6.27% to 15.84, signaling a decline in hedging demand. Treasury yields eased slightly, with the 10-year falling 3 basis points to 4.54%.

Semiconductor and AI Resurgence

The standout theme was a powerful rebound in semiconductor and AI infrastructure stocks. The Memory sector surged 4.78%, powered by Micron (+4.52%) following its announcement of a $3 billion strategic investment to strengthen the US semiconductor ecosystem. SK Hynix's US offering being more than 7x oversubscribed underscored robust institutional appetite for memory exposure.

SanDisk led with a spectacular 7.59% gain, while Arm Holdings soared 9.20%, marking one of the session's most impressive moves. AMD jumped 5.67% and Meta climbed 4.70% after the social media giant announced its entry into the AI coding market, targeting Anthropic and OpenAI with custom chips—a move that eased investor concerns about AI spending. Broadcom (+3.20%) and Intel (+2.09%) also participated in the rally.

Notably, positioning data suggests the Memory and Networking sectors experienced short-squeeze dynamics, with elevated short interest and put positioning fueling the sharp reversals.

Broader Market Themes

Beyond mega-cap tech, the market saw broad participation. The Banking sector advanced 1.61% with 94% breadth, though elevated put/call ratios (1.40) indicate investors remain hedged despite the upside. SaaS stocks gained 0.97% with impressive 83% breadth, reflecting broad sector strength.

Among top gainers across the market, nLIGHT, Inc. (LASR) surged 27.32%, Fervo Energy (FRVO) rose 16.04%, and BridgeBio Pharma (BBIO) gained 15.12%.

Commodities and Policy

Gold climbed 1.23% to $4,132.60, extending its recent strength amid risk-on sentiment, while crude oil fell 2.33% to $71.81. Bitcoin advanced 1.75% to $63,220, tracking risk appetite higher.

The Federal Reserve announced leadership and objectives for task forces to advance monetary policy conduct, with notable private-sector participation including Marc Andreessen and Walmart CEO Doug McMillon, signaling continued focus on policy evolution.
